COAL AND ITS SUBSTITUTES. No Satisfactory Material Has Been Found to Take Its Place.

From the Illustrated London News. Wise men of science are beating their brains in the search for something to deliver us from the tyranny of coal. That fuel has warmed us and cooked our food for ages. Newcastle was famous for it 600 years ago. In these latter days it has turned the wheels of our machines and has given us light from gas. It is difficult to realize what coal does in giving heat, illumination and driving power, let alone the beautiful dyes which the chemist has drawn from the refuse of gasworks. After having been a servant, coal has become our master, without whose aid cities would be left in darkness, our meat would be raw, the railways would be useless tracks of rusty iron, the industry of our factories would cease, and our fieets would be no more able to carry merchandise or to fight the enemy at sea. Now, men of philosophic mind who watch the haste and waste with which we spend our stores of coal have begun to prophesy an inconceivable disaster. There is only so much coal left, they say, for the use of future generations.

Whom it was necessary to help in that way. Within six or seven weeks the number of dependent families had increased from less than two hundred to more than one thousand, or about four thousand persons. It was becoming apparent that even with the most careful investigation that could be made there was much abuse of this distribution of food. It had been found impossible to secure any relief from the municipal authorities in the form of public work. less tracks of rusty iron, the industry of

What, then, are the substitutes for coal in the processes of giving heat, light and driving power? Take heat first. An Irish-man might suggest the use of coke, but he would do better if he pointed to the beds of peat which fill the middle of his island. It may be asked whether we sufficiently re-alize its presence elsewhere. The Thames, for example, which is banked far down its peat, by the way, would create a new in-dustry, and find work for some of our Lon-don unemployed. But the commonest sub-stitute for coal is wood. The February number of the Review of Reviews contains a continuation of the report on relief measures adopted in American cities. From that report the following account of the plan of relief followed in Indianapolis is taken: The case of Indianapolis is one of very ex-

Miss E. CUNNINGHAM'S, n27-3m 1308 Sth. tt. n.w., near N st. the forefront. If not the very best organized for charity work, the capital of Indiana is certainly one of the two or three best cities in America. This fortunate condition was due in large part to the ceaseless efforts of the late Rev. Oscar C. McCullogh. The necessity for exceptional measures this winter began to be realised in October, when the unemployed workingmen in a series of meetings directed public attention to the necessity of a relief movement. An appeal was made to the Indianapolis Commercial Club to take charge of relief work. This business organization is composed of one thousand members, and has high prestige as the representative citizens' body of the town. The club referred the appeal of the workingmen to a special committee composed of Messrs. H. H. Hanna, Eli Lilly and William Fortune. These gentlemen made a report which was fully indorsed by the Commercial Club, by the city authorities and by the unemployed workingmen; and in consequence the three were appointed a permanent committee to workingmen; and in consequence the three were appointed a permanent committee to take complete charge of relief work. The funds of the Charity Organization Society were placed at their disposal, and that society continued its work under their direction and as an instrument to give better efficiency to their plans.

The committee in its report had advised against out-and-out charity, or any method of relief work that would have a tendency to pauperize the recipients. It proposed a single organization with whose plans there should be no interference, and which should use strictly business methods. It did not begin by asking contributions, but opened a registration bureau and filed the applications of the unemployed for work. With regard to every applicant there was ascertained full information as to his age, the number and age of those dependent upon him, the length of his residence in the city, his last employment and last wages, his income from pensions or otherwise, whether or not he was paying for a home through a building association, &c. The committee succeeded in securing work for about twenty per cent of the applicants. Meanwhile, it had been quietly supplying food to those whom it was necessary to help in that way. Within six or seven weeks the number of dependent families had increased from less
